If You Bought a Chain Savings Bond, and Many Hope Folks Have, You Have Broken a Law

By HELEN THOMAS
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP) — Postal authorities warned today U. S. savings bonds may lend "an aura of respectability" to chain letters but won't make them legal.

A chain letter scheme involving use of government bonds has cropped up from time to time in the past several years. Each time postal inspectors have roundly condemned the scheme as a "lottery" and therefore a fraud and illegal.

Authorities said persons who participate in chain letter schemes — whether solicitation is for money, bonds, or anything else of value — are subject to criminal prosecution.

Chain letters illegal — The chain letter scheme in which savings bonds are passed from person to person differs from other schemes in that the list of names is not sent by mail but is circulated hand-to-hand.

The Post Office Department said the savings bond version of the chain letter works this way: A new participant obtains the list by giving a receipt for purchase of a $25 savings bond to the person supplying the list. The list is then passed to the person in the chain who is required to mail to the person at the top of the list a receipt for purchase of a second $25 savings bond.

Receipt sent in letter — Two copies of the list are then made out. The first name is eliminated and the name of the purchaser added. The purchaser then endeavors to continue the chain by selling the list to two others willing to comply with the same conditions.

Postmaster General Arthur F. Summerfield warned recently that "neither the fact that savings bonds are used to give an aura of respectability to the scheme, nor the fact that the lists of persons participating are not circulated in the mails, alters the illegality of these operations."

Postal authorities said they investigate all reports of such schemes for possible prosecution. Summerfield said that while the postal service is directly concerned with the illegal aspects of such schemes, it is also "anxious to caution people" that they can lose their money if they are lured into them.

Summerfield put it this way: "Chain letter schemes always turn out so that the few who start them may get back a little more than their investment — at the risk of criminal prosecution — while practically all the others lose their money. Such an outcome is inevitable, inasmuch as the supply of interested persons is soon exhausted."

Battle on for Price Support on Minerals

By ARNOLD SAWISLAK

WASHINGTON (UP) — The administration today sought congressional support for a radical new price support program for minerals aimed at bolstering domestic mining without crippling the economy of Latin American nations.

The "domestic minerals stabilization plan" was also viewed as an attempt by President Eisenhower to gain friends for his embattled reciprocal trade and foreign aid bills.

Ward Issues a Challenge to Faubus

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — Chancellor Lee Ward of Paragould called Gov. Orval E. Faubus a "defiant demagogue" Monday night and challenged him to "open debate before the voters."

Ward spoke over a state-wide network of radio television stations and two radio stations. Several other radio stations carried delayed broadcasts.

The eastern Arkansas judge charged as far as Gov. Faubus was concerned, "the integration issue is as phony as snow in July" and said Faubus intended "to hid his record of disloyalty... and mismanagement of office behind a facade of race-baiting and appeal to mob violence."

Defining a demagogue as "one who says one thing and does another," Ward said Faubus had consistently advocated first segregation then integration.

No Evidence — Ward charged Faubus had not produced "one shred of evidence" that violence would have broken out at Central High School last fall if he had not called out troops to prevent integration.

"Do you believe he really had any evidence?" Ward asked.

Ward charged "in one last desperate effort to explain why he was planning to occupy a local unit of government with armed troops, Faubus made substantially this statement to high-ranking members of his official family:

"I have got to use the National Guard at Central High School to insure my election to a third term as governor."

Judge Ward, whose talk originated over television station KARK-TV in Little Rock, said Faubus had assured the people his actions on the Central High scene were to defend states' rights. But Ward said: "Now we might inquire—incidentally—just when states' rights became so much more important than school districts' rights or cities' right or peoples' rights."

He said Faubus had demanded his "day in court" but refused it when the opportunity came. He said the governor "huffed and he puffed like the proverbial dragon" but "when his day in court arrived... the old fire was gone from his nostrils so he tucked in his tail and slithered from the courtroom. Defender of states' right, indeed."

Ward said it was his "honest conviction that in school districts where white and colored people have both accepted and practiced segregation for the past 50 years or more, the question of whether the district should now integrate should be decided by a vote of the people living in the district."

The Paragould judge said he, "unlike my opponent," had "prepared and submitted to Congress a proposed law which would give to local school districts the right to revive prohibition."

In testimony prepared for delivery to the Senate Commerce Committee, Hester said brewers pay more than one billion dollars in excise taxes annually to federal and state governments. He said loss of this revenue would be "unwise" at this critical period in the history of our country.

Hester, whose organization members produce 85 per cent of the beer made in this country, said proponents of the bill realize "killing the brewing industry in one stroke by return to the prohibition era would be impossible." Therefore, he said, they have concluded that "strangulation, while somewhat slower, would in the long run be just as effective."

He argued beer advertising is "highly regarded as being in excellent taste." He said beer itself is "so highly regarded" by the American people that they spend more than five billion dollars a year for it—more than for any other beverage except milk.

U.S. Asks for Russia to Remove Threat

By BRUCE WM MUNN
United Press Staff Correspondent

UNITED STATES (UP) — The United States called upon the Soviet Union today to remove fear of massive surprise attack by agreeing to a zone of inspection in the Arctic.

But both in Moscow and on the floor of the Security Council Russia renewed its demands that the United States halt its H-bomber alert missions. In Moscow, Soviet Minister Andrei Gromyko said either the U.S. must halt such flights or bear "grave responsibilities for possible consequences."

Russia charged that the U.S. proposal was a diversionary move to deflect attention from H-bomber flights while seeking to spy on Soviet territory.

"Turn in the Road," — A Soviet resolution, placed before a U.N. council meeting which is overwhelmingly in favor of the U.S. plan, demanded that the questions of safeguards be placed before a summit meeting.

U.S. Ambassador Henry Cabot Lodge, introducing a resolution calling for a northern inspection zone, told the Security Council its session "could mark the turn in the road for which humanity has been looking."

Navy Fails in Effort to Loft Another Moon

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (UP) — The Navy lunged its Vanguard into space Monday night, but the rocket's third stage failed to ignite and crashed back into the ocean still clashing the hoped-for fourth U.S. satellite.

The Navy is now pushing plans for launching another Vanguard in less than a month carrying a similar 20-inch artificial moon.

"We will go right at it," said John P. Hagen, Vanguard Project director for the Naval Research Laboratory in Washington. He admitted, however, that the unsuccessful flight "was a great disappointment."

Spokesmen said preliminary data received during the Vanguard's flight indicated all went well for about 10 minutes — until the crucial instant some 300 miles above the ground when the solid fuel third stage was scheduled to ignite and kick free of the second stage.

What went amiss would not be known until data received here and at the Air Force's downrange tracking stations was sorted through by technicians of the Naval Research Lab and the Martin Company, prime contractor for the Vanguard.

The third stage evidently never separated from the second stage and plunged like a ballistic missile into the Atlantic some 1,500 miles southeast of the launching site, dooming the "chirping" sound of the satellite's radio voice to the silence of the sea.

The second stage was scheduled to land about where it did, but not with the third stage still attached.

The Defense Department said there was no chance of recovering the rocket's remains.

The instrument-bearing artificial moon was attached to the third stage of the rocket and would have been sprung free traveling at 18,000 miles an hour, and all gone as it should have.

The 11-ton Vanguard surged with a fiery splash from its launching pad at 1:35 p.m. a.e.t. and sped straight up for about 10 seconds before arcing over toward the southeast.

The second stage, containing the all-important guidance for the rocket, burned out in view of observers on beaches near the Cape about four and one-half minutes after blastoff, then coasted on for another five minutes in orbital attitude to keep the rocket on course. Then the third stage should have blasted free.

General Motors Wants to End Union Contract

By JIM KLOCKENKEMPER
United Press Automotive Editor

DETROIT (UP) — General Motors today notified the United Auto Workers it wishes to terminate its present contract May 29 when the contract expires.

The nation's biggest auto company took the unusual step in an apparent effort to block the union's strategy in carrying bargaining through the summer on a day-to-day basis without signing a new contract.

General Motors and Ford Monday turned down the union's deal for a three-month contract extension, and countered with proposals to extend the present contracts for another two years.

The union finds itself in a weak bargaining position, with near-record stocks of 850,000 unsold new cars and 400,000 UAW members unemployed.

"The union would like a bargaining showdown next fall when the companies must bring out 1959 models."

But today was the day of decision when the company and union had to give 30-day notice if either wanted 1955 contracts to end with the expiration date, May 29.

The union delayed its decision until this afternoon, but GM, which hadn't terminated or cancelled a contract since 1945, took the firm step of termination.

While there is nothing to prevent the parties from agreeing to a temporary extension after May 29, the notice of termination gives either party the right to walk out of the doors on that date and increases the pressure on the union to reach agreement.

Chrysler was expected to join GM and Ford in rejecting the union offer of a three-month extension when that company resumed negotiations with the UAW later today.

GM President Harlow H. Curtice and Ford President Henry Ford II told UAW President Walter P. Reuther Monday his proposal to extend contracts until September was a tactical maneuver to bargain with the companies as they prepared to build 1959 model cars.

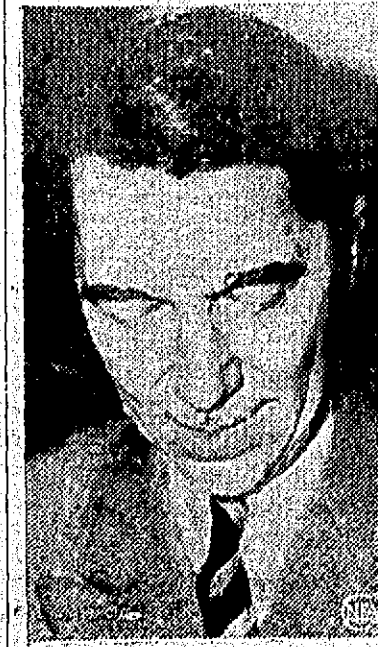

Offer One Improvement — Curtice and Ford said the best move for the union and for the nation's economy is a two-year extension renewal of 1955 contracts, giving workers a 7-cent hourly annual wage increase, continued quarterly cost-of-living wage adjustments and keeping

Hearing in Ozarks Case on Friday

CLARKSVILLE (UP) — Chancellor Paul X. Williams of Booneville will hold a hearing Friday to decide if the president of the College of the Ozarks should be enjoined from interrupting certain political science classes.

It will be another chapter in the feud between Dr. Charles C. Hamilton, professor of political science, and Dr. Winslow S. Drummond, president of the school. Hamilton, whom Drummond fired April 14, has asked for an injunction to prevent Drummond from further interference with his classes.

Last week, Hamilton released a statement charging that his "casualty prayer" to open a class was interrupted by Dr. Drummond, who stomped in and shouted "class is dismissed."

Chancellor Williams will hear the case on an exchange of circuits with Chancellor George O. Patterson of Clarksville. Patterson disqualified himself because he is a member of the College of the Ozarks board of trustees.

Drummond's attorney, Wiley Beau, filed a demurrer in the case. He charged there was no proper cause of action but admitted Hamilton's complaint contained correct statements.

Drummond demanded that Hamilton resign after charging the political science professor led a letter-writing campaign to the board of trustees in criticism of the school administration.

program before the Senate Interior and Minerals subcommittee Monday. He was called back this afternoon to face further questioning about it.

The proposed five-year program, to cost 101 million dollars the first year, would pay U.S. producers the difference between the domestic price of five minerals and an estimated "stabilization" price. Copper, lead, zinc, acid-grade fluor spar and tungsten would be covered.

Interior Department officials said frankly it was a "subsidy," presumably to be paid in cash to metal producers. They said details of the program have not yet been worked out.

A Department of Interior spokesman told the United Press the proposal was "a drastic move—a new philosophy in the administration." Without the administration has opposed extension of farmers.

Diplomatic officials indicated the move constituted the first step in implementing Secretary of State John Foster Dulles' recently heralded "new look" in foreign economic policy. According to these sources, Dulles succeeded in persuading the administration that unless urgent steps were taken to stabilize the metals market, Chile, Bolivia, Mexico and Peru would face a grave economic crisis.

Prepared stabilization prices and yearly limits on quantity were:

Copper, 27½ cents per pound, 1 million tons; lead 14½ cents per pound, 350,000 tons; zinc, 12½ cents, 350,000 tons; acid-grade fluor spar, $48 per short ton, 180,000 tons; and tungsten, $36 per short ton, 375 tons.

Cold Weather Grips Much of Nation

By UNITED PRESS

A cold wave with temperatures plunging as low as 15 degrees bit into the northern Midwest early today, and the southward flow of cool air touched off new weather violence in flood-plagued Texas.

A hard freeze, which could be damaging this late in the season, was expected over sections of the northern Plains and the upper Mississippi Valley today.

In Texas, a break in the levee along the rain-swollen Trinity River sent floodwaters swirling across an estimated 3,000 acres of crop and pasture land south of Dallas.

Faubus Is Undecided on Appealing

MANILA (UP)—Gov. Orval Faubus said Monday night he would confer with his attorneys before deciding whether to appeal the U.S. Circuit Court affirmation of a ban against his use of troops to prevent integration of Central High School last September.

"I don't know enough about the ruling. I won't know until I read the details," he said. He said he had hereafter a special to the Mississippi County Educational Association.

However, his chief legal counsel, Tom Harper, at Fort Smith said "We've planned from the start to take this thing to the very end and I'm sure the governor will appeal to the U.S. Supreme Court."

"That's the only recourse I know," he added. Faubus told the educational association he would "not be responsible for what happens if the federal government pushes our people too far on this integration business. I shudder to think what could happen if they do."

He said he would, if he had the chance, "call out troops again to uphold the peace and dignity of Arkansas."

He told the association those Bridgeport in north central Texas. A thunderstorm dumped 3 inches of rain at Caddo, Tex., Monday afternoon and hail storms pounded Krum and Gaitesville, Tex.

At least four persons were reported dead in weather-caused accidents in the Southwest since the weekend.

Smaller floods washed out roads in east Texas, northwest Louisiana and southern Arkansas. The blast of cold Canadian air in the North plunged readings an average of 20 to 25 degrees during the night. Duluth, Minn., reported an early morning reading of 15, and temperatures in the low 20s were common over a wide area from the Dakotas east to Lake Michigan.

A Northern League baseball game at Grand Forks, N.D., was called off Monday night because of snow, and an American Association game at Duluth was postponed due to cold weather.

To the south, overnight readings were held in the 30s and 40s in the central Plains and got no higher than the 50s in northwestern Texas.

Ahead of the cold air, warm Gulf air extended across the southland and up the Atlantic coast as far as New England. Rain hit sections of New England, changing to snow in the mountains.

Locally heavy rains fell in the warm weather region Monday night with Little Rock, Ark., reporting 1.74 inches, Evansville, Ind., 1.70 and Akron, Ohio, 1.08. Showers and thunderstorms also hit sections of the Atlantic coast, with Charleston, S.C., doused by a 2.25-inch downpour in six hours. West of the Rockies, skies were partly cloudy but generally free of rain.

Graham Tells Off His Audience

SAN FRANCISCO (UP)—Billy Graham laid it on the line Monday night to churchgoers. He provoked a gasp of surprise when he told a near-capacity crowd of 14,500 that they had each broken every single one of God's commandments.

"You will not be condemned at judgment for today," he thundered. "You are under sentence now. That's the reason you have not found peace and happiness."

Graham's crusades are usually aimed at those who belong to no church but who feel a spiritual emptiness in their lives. But Monday night he invited churchgoers to attend an "all church night," the first night meeting of his six-week crusade.

There were 150 different church groups present. Graham noted there were about 2,000 empty seats in the cow Palace. On Sunday, every seat was filled and there were about 2,500 standees.

But he called Monday night's turnout "encouraging."

"After Sunday, people got the idea they couldn't get here without getting into six miles of traffic jammies," he said.

who want to change custom "have no right to go out and do it through federal courts."

Miss Norma Nell Taylor

Marries Carl D. Ward
On Sunday afternoon, April 20, 1958 at 4 o'clock in the Rocky Mount Baptist Church, Miss Norma Nell Taylor, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman O. Taylor, became the bride of Carl D. Ward, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Derwin Ward of Emmet, Route 1.

The Rev. Farrel Wade White, pastor of the church performed the impressive double ring ceremony before a background of smiles and floor baskets of white gladioli and jade fern. Blue tapers burning in seven branch candelabra illuminated the scene. Nuptial music was furnished by Mrs. John Kaufman, who accompanied Miss Vivian Tomemaker, soloist, who sang, "Because" and "Wither Thou Goest." The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional.

The candles were lighted by Misses Darlene Schooley and Jewel Shope, who wore street length dresses of orchid and yellow cotton. They wore wristlets of pink feathered carnations.

The bride entered on the arm of her father, and was lovely in a street length dress of pale blue and white embroidered shantung fashioned with a full skirt and fitted bodice, with short puffed sleeves and low neckline, and a white satin cummerbund with streamers hanging to the hemline in the back.

Her shoulder length veil was attached to a matching blue half hat, covered with satin daisies, white satin mits and satin shoes. She carried a white Bible topped with an orchid, and feathered carnations. The traditional wedding marches were used for the processional and recessional.

pension, insurance and unemployment benefits at present rate. They offered Reuther only one improvement on the present contract—a plan for giving workers in Ohio, Indiana, Virginia and North Carolina the nickel an hour paid by the company for unemployment benefits for each worker. Workers in these states cannot collect company-paid unemployment benefits in addition to state compensation.

Curtice also told Reuther GM would offer to assist the union in keeping its word to refund $15 in extra dues paid by members into the union's strike fund.

The auto company presidents tore into the union's demands for a new contract. Curtice saying they would cost GM another 73 cents an hour per man, Ford saying the cost for his firm would be 71 cents an hour.

Ask 10-cent Raise

UAW Vice President Leonard Woodcock, head of the union negotiators at General Motors, called Curtice's 73-cent figure "probably fantastic." Ken Bannion, head UAW negotiator at Ford, said 71 cents was "absurd" and pointed out Ford Treasurer T.O. Yontana has told a Senate committee the union demand would cost 35 to 40 cents an hour more.

The union demands include an annual wage boost of 10 cents hourly, and increases in unemployment benefits, pensions, insurance and special pay considerations.

Profit sharing, also a part of the union bargaining program, was not mentioned in the exchange of union and company proposals Monday.

Reuther offered to extend the contracts if the companies would cut car prices, join the union in seeking an auto excise tax cut and prolong unemployment benefit payments.

Reuther said this move would help sell the near-record stock of 850,000 new cars, relieve the hardship of the auto industry's jobless and "get America back to work."

Raymond Clark served the groom as best man, and groomsmen were Jerry Byers and Jerry Brown who also served as ushers.

Misses Nellie Byers and Cloyse Williams presided at the Brides book.

Mrs. Taylor chose for her daughters wedding a dress of Mauve linen with matching lace trim and black accessories.

Mrs. Ward was wearing a pink linen dress with white and navy accessories. Each pinned a corsage of Cymbidium orchids at her shoulder.

Immediately following the ceremony, the couple left for a wedding trip to Oklahoma City, and for travel the bride wore a pink silk and cotton dress with matching jacket and hat. She pinned the orchid from her bridal bouquet at her shoulder.

On their return, the couple will be at home at 115 West 9th Street in Hope.

DOROTHY DIX

Should Two-Timer Know He Is To Be a Father?

Dear Dorothy Dix: After seven years of a happy marriage, I'm afraid my husband is becoming interested in another woman. He's constantly making excuses to get out at night, and his love for me seems to be cooling. Ironically enough, I learn now that after waiting and hoping so long for a baby, our dreams are to be realized. I haven't told my husband yet and don't know how I can. If he's serious about this other woman he may feel obligated to stay with me and I'd never want to keep a man against his will.

Dear A. H.: Tell your husband at once. It's certainly his right to know that after all these years his dearest wish is to be gratified. Forget about the other woman. She seems to be more a figment of your nerves, imagination and suspicions than a real menace. Perhaps your man has had a date or two with an office co-worker, but her fascination will quickly fade before the radiant vision of his firstborn. You've lost your perspective, and your sense of humor. Get them both back, then make a big deal of telling hubby that he will soon be a daddy.

Dear Dorothy Dix: Ever since our marriage seven years ago we have had one or the other of my in-laws sponging on us. My sister-in-law just left after a three-month stay, now her brother has moved in. My husband hasn't worked since January and we're living on our savings and unemployment payments, which aren't much. I have to buy two packs of cigarettes a day for my brother-in-law, feed him, do his laundry, then he "borrows" a dollar every now and then for the movies. We could move away and, I think, better our position, but folks say a rolling stone gathers no moss.

Dear C. E. F.: And a setting hen gathers nothing but mice. If you can get work out of town, I'm all for moving on. Your freeloaders would never spend a cent to come after you. However, if you want to stay put, hang an "Unwelcome" sign out for the in-laws. Tell them politely but firmly the handouts are over; that you simply can't afford to keep a pack of healthy but lazy relatives.

Dear Dorothy Dix: When I was overseas with the Army, my wife right I have suggested.

"Whether you may refer to my personal attitude as prejudice, bias, narrow-mindedness or stubbornness," said Ward, "the fact remains that I have a strong preference for segregation."

But he said he would not "lend this state into insurrection or rebellion against the federal government."

Says Formula 'Jammed'

Turning to the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co., Ward accused Gov. Faubus of having "jammed" through the Arkansas Legislature an act legalizing the unjust and unfair rate formula demanded by W. R. Stephens, board chairman of the utility.

Ward charged that common stock in the Arkansas-Louisiana Gas Co., rose $18 a share after "W. R. Stephens and Orval Faubus took over management of the company."

He said Faubus' aid to the utility "adds up to a tidy profit of more than $60 million—all at the expense of gas users in the state of Arkansas."

"Is there any wonder," asked Ward, "how why Stephens rented was flagrantly unfaithful to me, and as a result we were divorced. Now that I'm back in circulation, I seem to have paralyzed lions when it comes to talking with the opposite sex. How can I overcome this?

JOHNNY

Dear Johnny: By learning not to be afraid of the entire feminine sex because one member of it filled you. Whenever you meet a girl now, you're scared she'll draw you into another situation where you'll be hurt. Well, son, that's the chance we take.

Dear Dorothy Dix, I am married to a second husband and have a child by my first husband who is very much spoiled. Is it right for my present husband to spank her when she needs it?

AMY

Dear Amy: If you raised your child to be a brat you should be grateful to your husband for giving her all the discipline she needs.

a private railroad car to take Orval Faubus and his friends to Washington, D. C., and there treated them to a party at $100 a head. I'm certain you will agree that, through his disloyalty to the people of Arkansas, Orval had earned that treat."

How Much Stock

Ward challenged Faubus to "state publicly exactly how much stock he owns in the Arkansas Louisiana Gas Co., either in his own name or in the name of some agent."

The judge said a "veto for the third-term" candidate may very well insure another $60 million profit for W. R. Stephens and his associates.

"Another reason for denying Orval Faubus a third term is illustrated by news stories of what has been going on at Arkansas A&M College in Monticello," Ward said.

The chancellor said the "sordid situation" at the school in which President Horace E. Thompson was supposedly almost forced to resign, "bears all the earmarks of the horse-trading commercialism that has permeated the whole administration of Orval Faubus."

Can't Get Control

Ward said Faubus had "already appointed two highway commissioners and charged that 'with a third term, Faubus will then—by appointing one more commissioner—take full and complete control of the highway funds and personnel.'"

Ward said he had "no desire

Man Walking Along Highway Killed

LUTONA (UP)—State Police reported Clarence Wallace, 24, of Monette, was killed instantly Sunday when he was hit by a car while walking on highway 61.

The authorities identified the driver of the vehicle as George Fisher, age unlisted, of Blytheville.

Piggott Youth Dies in Wreck

PIGGOTT (UP)—A 17-year-old Piggott youth died Saturday night shortly after the car in which he was riding overturned on a curve on highway 1 about one mile south of Greenway.

Clay County Sheriff Leon Heaton identified the victim as Charles Mosby, a student at Piggott high school. Heaton said the car mistook the curve on the rain-slick highway.

to control or dictate policies" of the highway department.

Judge Ward closed his speech by challenging Gov. Faubus to "meet me in open debate before the voters." He suggested Faubus "name the times and places to suit your convenience. I will be there to meet you."

Ward said such debate was necessary because "it must be very clear to you that the third-term candidate intends to bid his sins behind a rabble-rousing appeal to race hatred."

TELEPHONE TALK

By Vance Smiley, Wire Chief, Hope, Ark.

CONGRATULATIONS

We, at the telephone office, want to express our congratulations to the Hope Industrial Committee for the fine job they have done in raising the "Industrial Fund," which now approaches the $200,000.00 mark. We are also proud of the amount that our Company has subscribed to this fund. This is the type of thing that will make Hope a better town. It seems that our citizens are more united than ever in a forward march and although there is talk of a recession, the buildings that are being built and remodeled here seems to point out that we are not doing too badly.

Telephone business continues to be good and we are grateful to you for it. We have added four new employees to our operating force this month and will probably add two more during May. These additional employees will boost our yearly payroll approximately $11,500.00.

SPRING HOUSE CLEANING

Is spring house cleaning under way at your home? And are you planning to do a little redecorating, too? I have a suggestion that will help add a little color to your home whether you're cleaning or redecorating. It is this: Put some color telephones in your home.

We now have nine attractive colors plus black. The colors are: white, cherry red, pastel yellow, ivory, moss green, rose pink, aqua blue, light beige, light grey.

From this variety you can choose one or several to blend or contrast with any colors in your home.

Color extension telephones are practical, too. You'll be surprised at the steps they save. No more running from one end of the house to the other to answer. Any color extension telephone will give you more privacy on calls.

Color extension telephones are economical, too. Here in Hope they cost only $10.00 (one-time charge) plus a small installation charge. The monthly extension charge is only $1.00 a month.

YOU CAN COUNT ON THE TELEPHONE

That statement has nothing to do with arithmetic. It means you can depend on the telephone. The fact that we average only one repair call every two years for each telephone. And, incidentally, that one repair call costs you nothing.

Another fact which we take for granted is that the telephone is at your service every minute of the day and night, throughout the year.

I think you'll agree, you can count on the telephone.

Call by number. It's twice as fast.

Annual 4-H Club Rally Held

The Annual 4-H Club Rally was held Friday, April 25 at Columbus High School with 365-4-H and adult leaders attending, as reported by Miss E. L. Ford and C. B. Smith, assistant county agents.

Sylvia Wade, vice president, presided over the program at 10 a.m. Welcome was extended to visiting clubs by Columbus School, Mattie Rutherford of Shaver Street Club and Sammie Grace Tyree of Blevins Club, secretary and assistant secretary of the county council, conducted roll call and each club present responded with a talent number, club report and financial report.

Following is a list of the clubs present and the amount of money each represented: Antioch, $2.50; Blevins-Iron Springs, $13.25; Clow $15; Columbus, $15; Douglas (McNabb) $15; Fulton $15; Green Hill, $6.50; Hopewell, $7; McCaskill, $9; Nolan, $9.50; Oak Grove, $15; Patmos, $9.60; Washington, $6; and Williams Chapel, $15, making a total of $138.35.

The main event of the program was a game "Two Go A Secret." Alvin Wilson of Blevins-Iron Springs was master of ceremonies and persons serving on the panel were Bertha Johnson of Antioch, Leo Smith of Oak Grove, Chester Lee Cheatham of Columbus and Carolyn Williams of Blevins. The panel did an excellent job of guessing the secrets. They guessed four of the six secrets presented to them.

Everyone attending seemed to have enjoyed the entire day. The afternoon was devoted to games, mostly softball.

British Press U. S., France to Accept

LONDON (UP)—Britain pressed the United States and France today to accept Russia's demand for inclusion of Communist Poland and Czechoslovakia in pre-summit preparatory talks.

Informed British sources said Britain was doing so in an effort to break through what officials feared might become another major roadblock in the way of an East-West meeting of the heads of government.

Russia put forward her latest demand in a new note to the West last Saturday.

Informed sources said the British government does not like the idea of admitting Soviet satellites into the East-West meetings, either now or at a summit conference.

But they said Britain does not regard the Soviet demand as an "insuperable obstacle" and does not feel it should block holding of a summit conference indefinitely. The U.S. and France were much cooler to the idea.

Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd discussed the Soviet move this morning with Christian Herter, Hester, U.S. assistant secretary of state who is passing through here en route to Washington from Brussels.

A foreign Office spokesman said discussions also were being carried on in Washington between the State Department and the British and French embassies there.

Officials said the three Western powers already agree on these points:

—Admission of Poland and Czechoslovakia to the pre-summit talks simply will complicate the discussions and probably result in further delays.

—The West cannot agree that Soviet satellites should be accepted as equals by the Western Big Three.

—Once the West accepts the principle of a numerical parity, which the Russians have demanded, it will be there to stay and the West will have to agree to inclusion of them in all future East-West discussions, including the summit conference itself.

No Western government favors acceptance of the Soviet plan but Britain's Conservative government is under heavy internal political pressure to get a summit parley underway. For this reason alone, Britain is pressing its Allies to accept the Russian demand rather than let it block the talks.

Steel Industry Wage Freeze Is Rejected

WASHINGTON (UP)—David J. McDonald, president of the AFL-CIO United Steelworkers Union, today rejected proposals for a steel industry wage freeze as an anti-recession measure.

Vice President Richard M. Nixon and some economists have urged the steelworkers to forego automatic wage boosts due July 1 if steelmakers freeze prices.

McDonald, in testimony prepared for the House Banking Committee, called for wage increases and tax cuts to raise consumer purchasing power and stimulate the economy.

Any pay freeze, he said, would be "as effective as tying an anchor to a boat in order to make it go."

Leaders of every AFL-CIO union meantime began a closed-door conference here to review labor legislation in Congress.

McDonald blamed the steel industry and other major industries for creating inflation by "rigging" prices.

"Those major industries where prices are administered and where pricing policies have been designed to yield ever-increasing profits and profit margins are responsible for the paradox of a rising price level in a period of falling demand, falling production and increasing unemployment," he said.

Guthridge Likely to Oppose Brooks Hays

LITTLE ROCK (UP)—Attorney Amos Guthridge of Little Rock said Saturday he was "almost certain" to oppose Rep. Brooks Hays (D-Ark.) in the Democratic primary election.

Guthridge, long a severe critic of Hays, whom he has called a "brown integrationist," said he probably would announce by Tuesday noon.

Guthridge, attorney for the segregationist Citizens Council, ran unsuccessfully against Hays in 1952. He is 40.

Dr. W. M. Caskey of Clinton, Miss., will speak at the 7:30 p.m. meeting.

Brahmanism, or Hinduism, dates from 4500 B. C. is the oldest organized living religion in the world.

"Do you think I haven't foreseen this?" grunted Denver. "I didn't work out this scheme yesterday, or the day before. I planned it a long, long time ago. I covered every possible angle. If one thing went wrong I was prepared for an alternative. Well, just about everything has gone wrong up to now, but I've still got the old ace in the hole. Plan Number Three."

He caught Alderton's eye and walked off, out of earshot of Partridge and the others. Alderton followed. Denver began to talk earnestly and Partridge from a distance watched with growing distaste. "Some scheme to save his own hide, I'll bet," he said cynically to Honsinger, the young gunfighter.

Denver came abruptly back to Partridge and the others.

"Partridge," he said, "I want you and a couple of boys to get horses and make a run for it. We'll hold them here."

"Well, now," said Partridge mockingly, "that's dog-gone nice of you, Mr. Denver."

"Don't be a fool," snapped Denver. "I haven't got time. I want you to ride to the camp by the river, down at Weber's ranch. They've got some dynamite. You're to pile it into a wagon and then drive the wagon to—"

He heaved his lips with the tip of his tongue. "To Lobo Dam."

"That's all," said Partridge nodding. "Get past this young army, ride five-ten miles, get a bunch of dynamite and drive it across rough country ten-twelve miles, with farmers taking potshots at me—and the dynamite—all the way. I do this because I like the way you part your hair."

"You do it for this," snapped Denver. He reached into his breast pocket and whisked out a wallet. He skinned out a half-inch stack of currency—all hundreds.

"It'll take two men," he continued. "No, better make it three. Five hundred apiece when the gam blows."

"Oh, we blow up the dam," Denver came abruptly back to Partridge and the others.

"Partridge," he said, "I want you and a couple of boys to get horses and make a run for it. We'll hold them here."

"Well, now," said Partridge mockingly, "that's dog-gone nice of you, Mr. Denver."

to?"

"That's the easiest part of the job. There's no one there but an old caretaker. He can't see beyond his nose."

Paul Partridge took the stack of bills from Denver's hand.

"Well, kid?" he said to Honsinger.

"That's a lot of money," Honsinger said.

"Hopkins?" Partridge asked.

Hopkins sent a worried glance at the encephalic farmers. "I can use the money."

"The three men headed for the corral in a rush, mounted and sent their horses galloping off to the west."

Charlie Weber, at the head of the encircling column, was aware of the three riders leaving Lobo and spurred his horse forward to try to intercept them. Several farmers followed him, but their mounts were work horses, slow and clumsy. The trio escaped the circle by more than 100 feet.

Weber reached into his hip pocket and drew out a clean white handkerchief, tying it to the muzzle of his rifle. He rode toward the ranch.

Denver and Alderton saw the handkerchief on Weber's gun.

"That's fine," Denver said with huge satisfaction. "We'll kill some time."

Denver moved forward to meet Weber, Kazumplik and Novik.

The three farmers rode up to within 50 feet of Denver before he raised his hand. "That's far enough."

"You've seen our men," Weber began. "You know we've got enough to take this ranch."

"Maybe," said Denver cheerfully, "and maybe not, but I want to call your attention to the fact that this is a legally constituted posse, headed by the legal Sheriff of this county. Any overt act, by any member of your group, and you're all equal responsible."

"Don't talk to me about law, Denver," growled Weber. "What you're doing down at my son's place is illegal."

"Since when are you a lawyer, Weber?" mocked Denver.

"Have you been down to the courthouse lately and looked up the records? Your son's ranch, as you call it, was sold for taxes years ago."

"That's not true. The taxes were paid."

"Did you pay them?" Weber had not paid them, but Marshall Eads had told him years ago that the property was still in Tom's name.

"And by the way," continued Denver, "is that fine son of yours with you? It he is, the sheriff has a warrant for his arrest."

"Murder. Double murder. If you're protecting him—"

"Tom's not with us," snapped Weber.

"Charlie!" Kazumplik said suddenly. "We're playing his game—talking. He's stalling for time. Those men who rode off—"

"I know," said Weber. He turned his horse abruptly, and started off, back to the line of farmers. His friends trotted at his side.

A half dozen of the farmers came forward to meet the trio as they returned. "Do we fight?" one of them called out.

"I'm not so sure," said Weber. "I didn't like Denver's attitude one bit. He's too cocky, and you bit it on the nose when you said that we were playing his game by talking. He wanted us to talk."

He looked off to the east. "Perhaps we made a mistake coming here."

READY AND WAITING—Two twin batteries of the super-sonic beam-riding Terrier missiles stand ready for launching on the afterdeck of the U.S. cruiser Canberra. The Terrier, the Navy's first operational missile, is designed to intercept enemy aircraft, regardless of darkness or bad weather, before the enemy can attack U.S. fleet elements. The Terrier is 15 feet long and weighs 1,100 pounds. It has a four-foot wingspan. With booster attached, the missile has a ceiling of more than 50,000 feet. Seventeen Navy ships will be outfitted with the Terriers, which can also be launched from mobile trailers for use by ground forces.

Cites Soviet Industrial Advancement

By MERRIMAN SMITH
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—Allen W. Dulles, chief of the Central Intelligence Agency, said today that Soviet industrial progress threatens to outstrip the United States and poses "the most serious challenge" ever faced by this country in time of peace.

Dulles described the current American recession as "an expensive luxury" which has given the Russians a propaganda target as damaging to U.S. prestige abroad as the first Soviet Sputniks.

Dulles spoke to a lunch held in connection with the 46th annual meeting of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce.

Produced More Steel

He made these points about the current state of the Soviet economy:

—In the first quarter of 1953, Soviet industrial production rose 11 per cent higher than a year ago, while industrial production in this country declined 11 per cent.

—For the first time in history, the Soviet bloc (including satellites and China) produced more steel than the United States during the first quarter of 1953. Russia alone produced 75 per cent as much as the U.S. did.

—Russian coal production is running about 70 percent of the U.S. rate, and Soviet machine tools output is about double that of the United States.

—The rate of growth of the Russian economy, as measured by gross national product, is increasing at a rate about double that of the American economy.

Wage Demands Too High

These were the other highlights of the opening day session of the chamber's convention:

—Sen. Wallace F. Bennett (R-Utah), a member of the Senate Finance Committee, said a tax cut on top of big defense and anti-recession spending might plunge this country 20 to 24 billion dollars into the red during the next 14 months.

—Chamber President Philip M. Talbot said organized labor may be "pricing itself out of the market" by pushing its wage demands too high. He also said the federal government's slice of the national income is much too high and is "choking" investments and the initiative of private enterprise.

—Chairman George Mahon (D-Tex.) of the House Military Appropriations subcommittee said the United States still is behind Russia in developing an intercontinental ballistic missile but not "far enough behind to invite attack."

—William Holaday, Defense Department guided missiles chief, said Russia's position in overall missile development "is no better than our own at the present time."

During 1953, there was only one maternal death for every 2,700 live-born babies born in the United States.

Briton Adviser Escaped From Tribesmen

ADEN (UP)—British official

Robert Somerset escaped today from a desert fort where 300 rebel tribesmen had besieged him for more than 24 hours.

Somerset, political adviser in the Assarir fort district, had been cut off with about 40 loyal native soldiers in the mud brick fort eight miles below the troubled Aden-Yemen border.

British planes and troops rushed to the area Sunday to keep the anti-British tribesmen from claiming the 1,300-pound ($2,800) bounty their leaders reportedly offered for Somerset's life.

The tribesmen, armed with rifles and submachine guns, scattered before the onslaught of planes strafing and hurling anti-personnel bombs. Reports reaching here said Somerset escaped.

Somerset came here recently as adviser to the emir of Dhala, one of 17 tiny sheikhdoms and states that form Britain's West Aden protectorate. The emir now is a fugitive in Yemen.

In a second battle Sunday, rebel tribesmen attacked loyal troops near Dhala. One government guard was killed.

Tension in the protectorate has been rising since British troops started a hunt for two notorious rebel agitators two weeks ago.

This is Texas Eastern...

The system that grew 1600 miles longer in one year

Texas Eastern's vast pipeline network—carrying both natural gas and petroleum products—increased in length during 1957 by more than 1600 miles.

And that was just one year! Since 1947—when the war-built Big Inch and Little Big Inch were purchased from the government—Texas Eastern has more than doubled the length of its pipelines.

The significance of last year's pipeline growth is as much in its breadth—the variety of its uses—as in its 1600-mile length.

• As a transporter of refined oil products, Texas Eastern constructed a 238-mile lateral from Southern Indiana to Chicago to extend the length of its Little Big Inch system to 1700 miles. The new petroleum products system opens the Midwest to the Gulf Coast area's big refineries—which have 28 per cent of the nation's refining capacity.

• As a transporter of natural gas, Texas Eastern built nearly a thousand miles of pipelines, 422 miles of which consisted of a 30-inch line from Vidon to McAllen, Texas. This line links the Texas Eastern system with the rich fields in northeastern Mexico. As a result, a great new reserve of natural gas is made available to millions of homes and thousands of factories in a dozen or more Midwestern, Appalachian and Eastern Seaboard states for years to come.

In addition, Texas Eastern constructed hundreds of miles of various diameter pipelines that both increased the capacity of the existing system and extended lines into areas where new gas production has been discovered. All of which means that there will be more natural gas available to fill the growing consumer demand for this clean, economical and efficient fuel.
